Introduction to the

SOUTH ISLAND

of New Zealand

New Zealand's climate combines all the best features of the more healthy countries of Western Europe, without their extremes of heat and cold.

As the seasons of the year are opposite to those in the Northern Hemisphere, visitors from Northern climes can "follow the sun to New Zealand".

The seasons are as follows:—

Spring—	Autumn—
September,	March,
October,	April,
November.	May.
Summer—	Winter—
December,	June,
January	July,
February.	August.

SUNNY NELSON

Nelson City began its history on the 1st February, 1842, when it was settled by the New Zealand Company, under the leadership of Captain Arthur Wakefield, who was killed the following year in what is known as the Wairau Massacre. The Provincial Government was established in 1853 and under it a Board of Works administered the town's affairs until 1858, when Nelson was created a City. This was done by Letters Patent granted by Queen Victoria when the Nelson Diocese was formed. This historic document is now in the possession of the Right Reverend the Bishop of Nelson. However, it was not until 1874 that the City took advantage of its rights under the Municipal Corporations Act to govern itself.

Before the above events took place, however, the Nelson district played a prominent part in the early history of New Zealand, for it was at Golden Bay in 1642 that Abel Tasman christened the country Staten Landt.

Captain James Cook was the first white man to land in Nelson Province when he completed the circumnavigation of New Zealand in 1770. The next European visitor was Captain Dumont D'Urville of the French Navy, who made his headquarters at Astrolabe, north of Motueka, in January, 1827.

The Nelson district is one of the richest fruitgrowing areas in the country, the centre being the Borough of Motueka, thirty-four miles from the City. Hops and tobacco are grown in large quantities. The district is famous for its sunshine with its yearly average of over 2400 hours and average winter sunshine of 5½ hours per day. With its plentiful sunshine, beautiful beaches, natural features and well-kept gardens (both public and private) Nelson is an ideal place in which to spend a holiday. Thousands of visitors are attracted each year, and the many motor camps are well equipped to receive them.

The Cawthron Institute of scientific research is well worth a visit and is situated in the City, with its experimental farms and orchards in the County.

PICTON

No town in New Zealand can claim more beautiful surroundings than Picton. Set on the lower slopes of green hills which rise to bush-clad peaks, it looks out on Queen Charlotte Sound, with its moving panorama of motor-boats and yachts—swinging at anchor or tracing white wakes across the blue seas.

For a long time a popular holiday resort for people in the central area of New Zealand, Picton is now attracting tourists from more distant parts of the country and from overseas. The terminal point of railway and roads linking with all parts of the South Island, and with a steamer ferry service from Wellington, it is not only a holiday centre in itself, but a congregating point for tourists making their way to and from all parts of Queen Charlotte and Kenepuru Sounds.

The Borough of Picton has a population of about 2000 residents. All the requirements for an enjoyable holiday are available, with boating, fishing, shooting, scenic walks and drives, and various sporting activities. Safe bathing is possible off the foreshore less than a hundred yards from the shopping area.

There are three motor camps in Picton, also a large number of high-class motels, as well as several licensed hotels, and comfortable guest houses.

No one visiting Picton should go away without taking advantage of the many launch trips available to all the beauty spots on the Sound. Picton can assure its visitors a completely relaxing holiday in breath-taking surroundings, or a more energetic time for those so inclined.

Picton—Wellington and Wellington—Picton Drive on Drive off Rail—Road Ferry Service sails daily except Sunday.

INTRODUCTION TO MARLBOROUGH

Blenheim, Picton, Marlborough Sounds, and Kaikoura.

Ringed round by magnificent mountains and high hills lies a part of New Zealand that is one of the richest primary producing areas and also has some of the most glorious scenery in the world.

With a population of 12,000 in the heart of the fertile Wairau Valley, Blenheim is not only a picturesque town but it has for many years held the maximum sunshine record for New Zealand. In addition to its excellent climate, Blenheim has much to offer in the way of attractions to visitors. In the centre of the town, Riverside Park with its picturesque gardens and miniature Zoo, is a delight to both young and old. In the attractive garden setting of Seymour Square stand the Memorials dedicated to the fallen of both World Wars—a Clock Tower built of Marlborough stone for World War I, and an Illuminated Fountain with varying colour and jet combinations erected for World War II.

From Blenheim too, there are many scenic drives available, as well as visits to such historic places as Tua Marina, where the famous Wairau Massacre took place in 1843. This can be visited on the 18-mile drive to Picton at the head of the Queen Charlotte Sound, venue of hosts of holiday-makers in Summer.

HANMER SPRINGS

Hanmer Springs is eighty-four miles from Christchurch and is reached by an excellent motor road. It is situated in the Hanmer Plains and is bound on the north and west by the outlying mountain spurs of the northern end of the Southern Alps, ranging in height from 3000ft. to 6000ft. The altitude of Hanmer Springs is 1240ft. above sea-level the sea (East Coast) being about thirty miles away

Hanmer Springs is the principal mineral water resort of the South Island. The thermal waters are saline in nature with a faintly alkaline reaction, the principal ingredients being sodium chloride and sodium borate. The temperature of the hot springs varies from about 100 degrees to 118 degrees Fahr. The waters closely resemble the alkaline sulphuretted waters of Rotorua of the "Rachel" type, but contains much less silica. They approximate more closely to some of the most celebrated European waters of their type.

Greymouth, at the mouth of the Grey River, is the geographical centre of Westland and of the greatest coal, timber and gold producing district in New Zealand, as well as being the fifth largest exporting town in the Dominion. With a present population of over 9,000, it is the pivot of the West Coast railway system, and connects with Christchurch and the remainder of the South Island. The rail route to the East Coast runs through the Otira Tunnel (under Arthur's Pass), five and a-half miles long, but the motor road makes it possible for the traveller to see the world-famed Otira Gorge.

Greymouth is the starting place for drives to the State Mines, the beach at Rapahoe, to Brunner and to the Lakes through Mitchells; also the round trip past the three lakes, Lady Lake, Lake Poerua and Lake Brunner.

CHRISTCHURCH

Christchurch is built on a portion of the vast Canterbury Plain and is situated at the base of the Port Hills, which divide the city from Lyttelton Harbour and Bank Peninsular.

The level land on which the city is placed and its rectangular street plan give the city a sense of order unusual in New Zealand towns. For Christchurch did not just grow as a natural meeting place for trade; it was conceived on paper by Englishmen thousands of miles away, over a century ago. It was laid out in streets, divided and named when the only citizens were a few adventurous settlers and surveyors.

To the pioneers must go the credit for the huge Hagley Park reserve, a mere few minutes' walk from the busiest city streets. This has been very well developed and has given Christchurch a green heart envied by those towns whose growth was too rapid to allow space for lawns and trees.

In the centre is Cathedral Square, through which runs Colombo Street north and south, the longest straight street in New Zealand. From the entrance to the Cathedral, Worcester Street leads west towards Hagley Park and beyond it lie Dean's Bush, Riccarton, and the plains that stretch to the foothills of the Alps. To the east the streets run towards the beach at New Brighton.

No city can lay greater claim to the title of "Garden City of New Zealand" than Christchurch, and although its development has been rapid, with a population well over 200,000 it has not lost any of its charm. A stroll through the Botanical Gardens and the parks is a "must" on any visitor's itinerary at any time of the year. Observation tours are most popular and passengers travel in leisure and comfort through the city and garden suburbs or on the scenic Summit Road, which provides a never-to-be-forgotten scene of mountains, plain and sea. All sporting interests are catered for with excellent facilities at parks, beaches and other sports centres.

THE SUMMIT ROAD

For fine views, few drives could match that along the Summit Road or the Port Hills above Christchurch. In two parts, the Northern and Southern sections of the road total some sixteen miles, with every bend providing some new vista of mountain, plain, ocean or harbour. Perhaps the most unusual feature is the Sign of the Takahe, situated at the terminus of the No. 2 bus route on the road to the Summit at Dyers Pass. This unique building, planned and commenced by the late Mr. H. G. Ell, is built in the English Manor style and displays fine craftsmanship in both wood and stone. Here the visitor may take tea or relax in the beautiful lounge and enjoy the fine view to be had.

Why not view the city at night from the hills? The No. 2 bus leaves the square at regular intervals.

The introduction of turbo jet planes has reduced flying time to Christchurch from Australia to less than four hours, and from Auckland to 1½ hours. From Christchurch radiate rail, road and air routes to the infinite scenic attractions of the South Island. It is linked to the North Island by frequent daily air services and by steamer express across Cook Strait from the adjacent port of Lyttelton.

AKAROA

Akaroa, a charming town on Banks Pensinsula, is only 50 miles from Christchurch, but when the climate, terrain, and products are considered, it could be in a completely different hemisphere.

Akaroa lies on a breathtakingly beautiful harbour, encircled by a range of hills of some considerable height. This harbour and surroundings have seen history made. It was here that Te Rauparaha sailed between the headlands with his war canoes to make a cruel attack on the natives of Onawe Peninsula.

Akaroa has many fine walks within easy distance. Some of the shorter walks include Green Point Memorial, Akaroa Domain, Old French Cemetery on L'Aube Hill, Hewitt's Road, Balguerie Valley and the Maori Kaik. Longer walks for keen hikers include Lighthouse Walk, Flea Bay Summit, Mount Brazenose and many other more strenuous trips.

GERALDINE

Geraldine, one of the most picturesque inland towns in the Dominion, is 22½ miles from Timaru and 84 miles from Christchurch, and has a population of approximately 2000.

This attractive town lies at the foot of the Raukapuka Downs, which rise to a height of 500 ft., and is known for its beautiful native and English trees.

Geraldine is named after James Edward FitzGerald, the first Superintendent of Canterbury. It was originally a sawmilling township, but later became the business and social centre for the large runs in the district. Geraldine Town District was constituted in 1884 and was incorporated as a borough in 1905.

The District is served by a modern licensed hotel, and a modern motel which provides accommodation for motorists, in addition to boarding house accommodation. The attractive motor camp in the Domain is made the headquarters for walks and drives by hundreds of visiting campers every year. It is near a beautiful rose garden.

Other attractions for holiday makers in Geraldine include golf, bowls, tennis, croquet, fishing and swimming in a particularly fine Centennial pool. There is also the Geraldine Racing Club, established in 1874 and recognised as one of the most progressive country clubs in Canterbury.

TIMARU (By-the-Sea)

Timaru is a pleasantly situated sea-port town of some 25,000 inhabitants, about one hundred miles south of Christchurch.

Blessed with a temperate climate and its handy position, Timaru has special attractions as a residential town, as well as being a sunny, hospitable holiday resort. Timaru is the centre of one of the finest trout fishing regions in the South Island, and full provision has also been made for all other types of sport.

CAROLINE BAY: This popular bathing beach is perhaps the best known feature of Timaru and brings thousands of visitors to the annual carnival held here during Christmas and New Year. The beach was built up as a result of the harbour construction works, and as early as 1897 is possibilities were realised and volunteer working parties took up the task of cutting away the cliffs to form lawns and gardens which today make the bay so attractive. In 1911 the Caroline Bay Association was formed to assist the Borough Council in this beautifying work and continual improvements are being carried out. There is now an area of some 30 acres laid out in lawns and flower beds and planted with ornamental native trees. A sound shell provides for outdoor entertainment and attractions include hard and grass tennis courts, and tea kiosk. Caroline Bay is said to be the safest and best equipped beach in the South Island.

OAMARU

By courtesy South Island Publicity Assn.

OAMARU, the "white-stone city", is one of the most attractive towns in the Dominion. Sheltered on the south and west by a bastion of low hills, which throw a flank into the sea at Cape Wanbrow, it enjoys a climate much warmer and drier than most regions in similar latitudes. This is reflected in the beautiful gardens for which Oamaru is noted and in the region's popularity as a holiday resort. A seaport, and the second centre of population in the Otago Province, Oamaru is a progressive town, well favoured by climate and geographical position. The average rainfall is 22 inches annually and the sunshine average for the year exceeds 1,900 hours.

Oamaru is also worthy of attention because of its association with the foundation of the frozen meat trade to which New Zealand owes much of its remarkable economic growth. It was on the rolling downs of the southern side of the town that the first sheep to be sent successfully to London as refrigerated mutton were raised. A cairn at Totaratahi standing on a hill beside the main highway, commemorates the part played in this historic event by Thomas Brydone, who was then in charge of the Totara estate.

WONDERLAND STATUARY.

Inspired by the "Peter Pan" in Kensington Gardens, Mr. Robert Milligan, a former Mayor, presented to the Gardens the "Wonderland" statuary, the work of an English sculptor, T. J. Clapperton. This charming work in bronze, one of the most beautiful in the Dominion, more than justifies a visit to Oamaru and its Gardens. It embodies an idea similar to that which has made the "Peter Pan" so famous, and the setting at Oamaru enhances its charm.

ANGLING.

Brown and Rainbow Trout angling provide good fishing throughout the district in easily accessible streams and lakes. The Waitaki is close at hand, the Kakanui only 8 to 10 miles south of Oamaru, the Hakataramea and the Ahuriri are little more than an hour's drive from Oamaru, and the Shag River to the south is about the same distance.

EDINBURGH OF THE SOUTH

Dunedin, a true city of the hills, is the gateway to New Zealand's most remarkable scenic beauties, the Southern Lakes and Fiordland. The city itself, founded in 1848 by Scottish pioneers, has a population of over 100,000 and is one of the most financially stable business centres in the country.

Nestling in one of the Dominion's most attractive harbours, Dunedin is a city of beauty and grace, with splendid South Pacific beaches, wonderful bays, 500 acres of native bush reserve, unsurpassed views from the hills, and several unique features, such as its two castles—Lanarch's and Cargill's.

Visitors are catered for specially in January, when the city holds its Annual Festival, with Symphony concerts, racing, vintage car rallies, processions, brass and pipe bands, and all the fun of the fair.

Dunedin is known as the university city of New Zealand, for here was founded the University of Otago, with its world-famous Medical and Dental Schools.

In addition, it is New Zealand's oldest manufacturing centre.

First class road and air services connect the city with the Southern Lakes and Milford Sound, the world's most majestic fiord. In winter there is first class ski-ing at Coronet Peak, Queenstown, and ice-skating throughout Central Otago.

QUEENSTOWN

Through the impressive Kawarau Gorge, the road leads to Queenstown on Lake Wakatipu. Cradled under the range named the Remarkables, overlooking an inland sea of enchanting beauty, Queenstown has become one of the leading resorts of New Zealand. It has attractions in all seasons, not just the summer.

Lake Wakatipu, in the vicinity of which most of the tourist attractions are located, resembles the Alpine lakes of Switzerland and Northern Italy in form. It is of glacial origin and shaped somewhat like an elongated S. Fifty-two miles long, it varies from one to three miles in width. The greatest depth is 2,242 feet. Altitude above sea-level is 1,070 feet. A pecularity of Lake Wakatipu is "breathing", a regular rise and fall of the waters, with an imperceptible pulsating movement that averages three inches every five minutes.

An excellent ski-ing ground has been developed at Coronet Peak snowfields, some 12 miles from Queenstown, near the end of Skippers Road. Ski lifts have been installed which enable ski-ing to be continued late into the season, when the snow-line recedes to higher levels. Lodge accommodation is available for ski-ers, but visitors and spectators of snow events require to obtain accommodation at Queenstown. This accommodation caters for all tastes. There are de-luxe class Licensed Hotels, private hotels, and motels, as well as good lower priced places. The Queenstown Domain, a beautiful area of trees, lawns, gardens and pools caters for the family, providing excellent camping accommodation, as well as playground facilities for children, and picnic grounds for the casual visitor.

Queenstown provides a wealth of walking excursions for the more energetic. The town provides a variety of sporting activities in the summer. The Lake abounds in trout, and tennis, golf, swimming and facilities for all other sports are to be found in this inland paradise for tourists.

PRIVATE BAG, QUEENSTOWN. TELEGRAPH, "SOUTHAIR." TELEPHONE 151.

Queenstown is linked to Dunedin by a regular air service, as well as the Road Services bus.

Southern Scenic Air Services Ltd. operate scenic flights from their airport at Frankton (near Queenstown) to world-famed Milford Sound and over Fiordland. They also have aircraft available for special charter flights to Mount Cook or anywhere the tourist wishes to fly.

Launch trips to Kawarau Dam and Bob's Cave are made daily, and Drive-U-Self speedboats, motor and rowing boats are available for hire near the steamer wharf.

An excursion to Arrowtown should not be missed whilst in the vicinity. It is situated 12½ miles north-east of Queenstown and was constituted a borough in 1877. It was originally a gold-mining town, and the museum is something every tourist and visitor should see. The two bottle houses at Queenstown are unique, being made almost entirely of bottles.
